Notwithstanding the limited range of the investigation ordered, and the experimental character of the result this compilation was a valuable contribution to the statistical knowledge of this country, and the painstaking reports of the consuls, when tabulated and systemitized, served to show that the wages paid to laboring men in the United States were higher, while at the same time the average cost of living, on a better scale than is usual with the labor classes abroad, was less in the United States than in Europe, and that the moral, physical, and intellectual status of the laborer was on the whole higher and more favorable to progress in this country than abroad. The publication of the Labor Report of 1878- 79 naturally attracted much attention, and many demands have been since made for the periodical collection of like statistical information. With the growing importance of the labor question as one of vital interest to our body politic, the necessity of following and noting whatever changes may take place in the labor conditions at home and abroad became evident. Moreover, the deep national concern felt in the subject has been made apparent by the discussions of the question in Congress during the last sessions, which ended in the creation of a new administrative office, the Bureau of Labor, charged with...
