Regarding water supplies, when the federal government acquired the preserve, the existing water treatment facility was not functioning, so no potable water was available. Rehabilitating this facility became one of the Trusts top priorities. Repairs to the water collection and filtration systems were completed in 2004, the water distribution system was repaired in 2005, and potable water became available in spring 2006. Still, the present water supply freezes during the winter and can dry up during the summer; the Trust is therefore evaluating groundwater reserves and options for drilling a well to supply water year-round. In the end, rehabilitating deteriorating infrastructure has proven to be an expensive and time-consuming endeavor, and the Trusts efforts have not begun to address capital improvements, such as permanent visitor facilities or roads in support of the Preservation Acts goals. Indeed, as of 2008, the Trust still faced nearly 1. 2 million in deferred maintenance costs for existing buildings alone. From the time it first articulated the principles by which it would manage The Trust Created a Science Valles Caldera, the Trust viewed science as key to protecting and Program to Lay the Foundation preserving the land while developing programs that could bring in for Activities Allowed at the revenue. It committed to using science in an adaptive management Preserve framework, by continuously gathering and applying site-specific scientific knowledge. According to the Trusts Framework and Strategic Guidance for Comprehensive Management, the chief characteristic of the Trusts view of adaptive management is the monitoring of natural systems and the human activities impinging on those systems, coupled with use of the monitoring information to guide and, when needed,...
